

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. PRAEFATIO.

NE propera, Lector, Musam damnare localem, carmina quod medio non canat apta foro:
namque Academiae non sunt generalia curae,
res nobis nostrae nostraque verba placent:
EDITOR exagitat vates cessare volentes,
inserit et chartis nonnisi nota suis.
est proprium vitium si quid peccavimus arte:
rem male si quando legimus, est populi.

VERSES TO ORDER.

A LAMENT.

OXFORD! o'er your history's pages
Gloomy is the retrospect;
For in spite of warning sages
Still your faults you can't correct.

Here—for instance—Thorold Rogers
Tells you (and I fear it's true)
How Professors (artful dodgers)
Cut their work, yet draw their "screw;"

How the Reader conscientious,
Solitary as a nun,
Reads, alas! to empty benches,
Or, at most, a class of one:

How insulted Alma Mater's
Eye with sorrow still remarks
Twins in neat perambulators Circumambulate the Parks.

* * * *

But the House of Convocation—
Evils worse than these deface it :
There each liberal aspiration
Sinks beneath a cold Non Placet :

There, Historians' claims defying,
Law's appeal you still resist,
Even now but half complying
With th' "Unlettered Physicist."

Still a brace of arrant Tories
You on Parliament bestow :
Where—O Tempora, O Mores !
As we read in Cicero—
O Magistri et Doctores,
Where do you expect to go ?

*CARMEN GUALTERI MAP EX AUL.
NOV. HOSP.*

OTIOSUS homo sum : cano laudes oti :
Qui laborem cupiunt procul sint remoti :
Ipse sum adversus huic rationi toti :
Pariter insaniunt ac si essent poti.

Diligens arundinis lucidique solis,
Aciem quod ingeni acuis et polis,
Salve dium Otium, inimicum scholis
Atque rebus omnibus quae sunt magnae molis !

Nota discunt alii remigandi iura,
Qua premendus arte sit venter inter crura :
Haec est vitae ratio longe nimis dura :
Nulla nobis cutis est deterendae cura.

Habitu levissimo magna pars induto
Pellunt pilas pedibus, concidunt in luto :
Hos, si potest fieri, stultiores puto
Atque tantum similes animali bruto.

Alius contrariis usus disciplinis
Procul rivo vivit et Torpidorum vinis :
Nullus unquam ponitur huic legendi finis :
Vescitur radicibus Graecis et Latinis :

Mihi cum ut subeam Moderationes
Tutor suadet anxius "Frustra" inquam "mones :
Per me licet ignibus universas dones
Aeschyli palmarias emendationes !"

Ego insanissimos reor insanorum
Mane tempus esse qui dictitent laborum :
Otium est optimum omnium bonorum :
Ante diem medium non relinquo torum.

Ergo iam donabimus hoc praeceptum gratis
Vobis membris omnibus Universitatis,
Dominis Doctoribus, Undergraduatis—
PROFESSORES CVRA SIT OMNES VT FIATIS.

FRÜHLINGSLIED.

Now in the boughs the throistle sings,
 Abroad the lambkins skip:
 Now every morn a "Leaflet" brings
 And every eve a Whip:
 Their finny victims anglers seek
 In each pellucid pool:
 And Convocation once a week
 Invents a Final School.

Whene'er I walk about the town
 Some specialist I view:
 They bid me vote for tongues unknown,
 For Readers strange and new:
 But ah! debarred from arts like theirs
 By Fate's unjust decrees,
 I cannot prate of ancient Erse
 Or modern Japanese.

The sun shines fair on Charsley's Hall,
 As Scott (I think) remarks:
 I hear the sound of bat and ball
 Proceeding from the Parks:
 My friend,—although the views we share
 Materially agree,—
 Voters, like birds, in springtime pair:
 Then pair, O pair with me!

OUT OF WORK.

HE said,—and shed some natural tears,—
 A College Tutor old and gray,
 “’Twas ever thus! from childhood’s years
 I still have known the Council’s way.
 I never loved an Honour School,
 Or conned its course with studious glee,
 But Convocation’s changeful rule
 Decreed that School must cease to be!

Farewell to all I counted dear,
 My Latin Prose, my Virgil lectures,
 The audiences that thronged to hear
 My (often palmary) conjectures:—
 Farewell, my famed Remarks on Jelf,
 My celebrated Note on γούρ;
 Go, moulder idly on the shelf,
 Demosthenes upon the Crown!

For this I’ve burnt the midnight oil
 In getting up the frequent tip,
 For this, with long nocturnal toil,
 I’ve served the Cause of Scholarship,—
 That I my Furneaux and my Jebb
 Must change for History’s doubtful dates,
 And teach, or starve, th’ evasive neb-ulosities of Honour Greats.

I'll seek some more congenial clime
Where Prose and Verse the mind engage;
Philosophies of Space and Time
Can ne'er console my vacant age!"
With lip of scorn he packed his "Mayor,"
His notebooks grasped with brow of choler:
Then took the train for Cambridge—where
'Tis said they still respect a Scholar.

A SONG OF DEGREES.

THERE's reality, then,
 In what rumours allege,
 And the Council again
 Are assaying the edge
 Of their ancient and dangerous weapon—once more the Thin End of the Wedge.

They've a scheme to propose
 (On the plan "Do ut des")
 Which will multiply those Who proceed to Degrees:—
 You may get your M.A. from the Bursar, on sending the requisite fees!

We, who still have defied
 The Hebdomadal's nods,
 Who have fought and have died
 (So to speak) against odds,
 Who have grappled with Letto-Slavonic, and pulverised
 History Mods—

Thus to tout for M.A.'s
 Is a thing we detest:
 'Twere a standing disgrace
 If we e'er acquiesced
 In a change that is simply and solely designed to replenish the Chest. •

If Degrees don't come in
As they used long ago,
And it's found that the tin
In the Cashbox is low,—
Let them sell the Museum to Keble—abolish a Reader or so :

Let them lurk in the Corn
After Union debates :
Let them prowl until morn
By the Theatre's gates :
Let them proctorise golfers from Cowley, and men coming up from the Eights.

But your scout (as you see)
If you simply go down
And receive your Degree
In the Highlands—in Town—Cannot wait at the Apodyterium, and be tipped for presenting your gown.

Pause, O Vice, for a while,
And reflect, if you can,
How the system must rile
That respectable man,
When he finds his legitimate profits reduced by your Radical plan.

Do I sleep? Do I dream?

No, I fear there's no doubt
Of the truth of the scheme

That the Council's about:

To enrich an effete institution they risk the receipts of the scout!

TO OUR CRITIC. (1892.)

GREAT Mr. Collins, reformer of Colleges!

Though we admit we have grievously erred,
Hear our excuses, our pleas and apologies—

Do not, O do not condemn us unheard!

True, we acknowledge our various deficiencies,

Laggards delaying the march of the time;

True that the tale of our crimes and omissions is Too long by far for recounting in rhyme:

Still there are some you should really think better of,

Some who may 'scape from your critical ban:

Have you not read the remarkable letter of Nettlesh-p, Bywat-r, P-lham, M-can?

If there are faults that you cannot abear in us,

Stamping our lives with indelible shame,

All is the fault of the Council's contrariness:

They and not we are the persons to blame:

They and not we who refuse the admission of

Subjects unknown in our ancestors' days:

They and not we who reject the petition of

More than a hundred enlightened M.A.'s!

Yes—and suppose that the Council were willing to Open its mind to a subject that's new,
Still 'tis the fact that we haven't a shilling to Spend on the studies suggested by you.

Grant, that our authors from Morris to Malory
Languish untaught on their several shelves:
Grant, that for want of a Reader (with salary)
Students are forced to read Keats for themselves:

Think of the claims of the Natural Sciences,
All of them rolling their separate logs:
Think of the millions we spend on appliances,
Chemists and Botanists, rabbits and frogs!

Here an excuse for our absence of progress is,
Here is a plea for the sloth you deplore—
Science's ravenous maw (like an ogress's)
Takes what we give her and clamours for more.

Hear our excuses, our pleas and apologies,
Great Mr. Collins, dissatisfied man!
Fully the bard your indictment acknowledges—
Still we are doing the best that we can.

WHAT IS IT?

"A new movement has been arranged, and will shortly take place."
 —Statement in the "Oxford Magazine."

SIR,

O what do you mean, in last week's Magazine, with your highly alarming suggestion?

Do speak plainly for once (I confess I'm a dunce), and reply to a pertinent question.

Can it really be true there's a Movement in view? then give to your terrified reader

Some idea, if you can, of its object and plan, and the name and address of its leader!

Why, I thought on the day when I sped to obey the Conservative summons to muster,

And submissively wrote (as instructed) my vote for the excellent P—t of W—t—r,

That the vote which I gave was intended to save from the arts of a Radical faction—

We had weathered the storm, as I hoped, of Reform, and embarked on the stream of Reaction.

But alas! for once more we must hie to the door where Eloquence woos us to slumber,

And the Leaflet and Whip will diurnally drip on the tables they used to encumber:

We must listen again to those eminent men, whose speeches sonorous and splendid

Were so often the cause of repealing the laws which those great rhetoricians defended.

Are they at it anew, the beneficent crew who would break with traditions that warp us?
Do the Somerville Dons wish to confiscate John's, or annex the endowments of Corpus?
Or the Scientists want an additional grant, and have banded their ranks with Philology's,
And they all do their best to extract from the Chest
what the Chest has to wring from the Colleges:

There's the Radical clique who are hostile to Greek, and for Latin would substitute German,
Who call fees an abuse, and who can't see the use of the 'Varsity afternoon sermon;
There's the person who looks with contempt on his books
as of ignorance merely the causes,
And who everywhere states that distinction in Greats is for knowledge of classical vases—

Do be serious, and say to a timid M.A. what this new and destructive device is (There are times when a jest is misplaced, at the best, and we stand on the Brink of a Crisis):
Just mention the foes whom I have to oppose, and the troops of Reform that are arming,
But refrain, if you please, from suggestions like these,
which are simply and solely alarming!

TRUTH AT LAST.

LITERARY compositions (thus I heard a Tutor say)
Have, as mediums of instruction, altogether had their day :

Be not like our rude forefathers, who their pupils' minds perplexed

With their futile speculation on the meaning of the text.

In their critical editions we completely fail to trace
That contempt of ancient authors which is Learning's surest base ;

Any lies of any writers—Homer, Plutarch, Livy, Demosthenes or Aristotle—all were good enough for them.

Mere exactitude linguistic simply serves to hide the truth :
Grammar's but a dull convention meant to vex the soul of youth :

If you want to Make an Epoch, as a scholar ought to do,
Try the methods advocated in the Classical Review.

There they teach how quite misleading is Thucydides' narration

—Save perhaps when illustrated by a recent excavation,— Prove Herodotus a liar—show conclusively that one Square half-inch of ancient potsherd's worth the whole of Xenophon.

If you should consult the classics (and at times I think you must,
Just to show they're persons whom it's quite impossible to trust),
Do not seek the verbal meaning and the literal sense to render :
Read them (like the late Macaulay) "with your feet upon the fender."

This be then your chief endeavour,—not to construe,
parse, or scan,
Not to have the least conception what the acrostic means with ἀν—
But by study of the relics disinterred in various spots Pans Arcadian to distinguish clearly from Corinthian pots :

Thus the purest stream of knowledge from the fountainhead you'll sip :
Thus you'll do a genuine service to the cause of Scholarship :
For by Fact and not by language now the ancient world
we view—
Which was what our rude forefathers altogether failed to do.

A HANDBOOK TO HOMER.

"We regretted much to see Professor * * * * lending the weight of his brilliant name to the statement that schoolboys ought not to read Homer, because it would corrupt their Greek."—Note in the "Oxford Magazine."

*Poluphloisboisterous Homer of old
Threw all his augments into the sea,
Although he had often been courteously told
That perfect imperfects begin with an e :
But the Poet replied with a dignified air,
"What the Digamma does any one care?"*

Yes—it is true that that singular man
(Whether he's Homer, or somebody else)
Often puts $\kappa\epsilon\nu$ where he should have put $\alpha\iota\nu$,
Seldom will construe and mostly misspells,
And wholly ignores those grand old laws
Which govern the Attic conditional clause.

This is the author whom innocent boys
Cram for Responsions and grind at for Mods,
Possible Ithacas, mythical Troys,
Scandalous stories of heroes and gods,
Wholly deficient in morals and truth,—
That is the way that we educate Youth!

Even the great Alexandrian clique
Never attempted to write him anew :
Learning's reformer, Professor of Greek !
Erudite person ! they left it to you.
Now shall we have—'twas a manifest need—
Something that serious scholars can read.

Parents and guardians may surely expect
Books where the student orthography learns,
Language grammatical, spelling correct,
Not the vagaries of Chaucer or Burns,— Syntax and idioms adapted to those Stated distinctly in Sidgw-ck's Greek Prose :

None of the puzzles that puzzle us now,
Nothing to hinder disciple or don,
All of his genitives enduring in ov,
All of his ἀπαξ λεγόμενα gone—
Homer conforming to classical rule—
That is the Homer for College and School !

AD GERMANOS.

YE Germans, whose daring conjectures,
 Whose questionings darkly abstruse,
 Provide our Professors with lectures,
 Our Dons with original views,
 I strive to express what we owe you
 With wholly inadequate pen :
 Too late and too little we know you,
 Remarkable men !

Had you lived but two thousand years sooner
 Poor Plato had ne'er been perplexed,
 No frequent and fatal lacuna
 Had marred a Thucydides' text :
 Nor Pindar had puzzled the guesser,
 And ne'er had the public misled,
 Had he asked a Teutonic Professor
 To write him instead.

Though the facts that you foist on historians
 To the regions of fancy belong,
 And your dreams of the dates of the Dorians
 Are often demonstrably wrong,—
 Though your best emendations be "putid"
 When viewed through a critical lens,
 Your axioms completely confuted
 By grammar and sense,—

Yet O! till the Pedagogues' Diet
(Determined distinctly to speak)
Prohibits with terrible fiat
The teaching of Latin and Greek,
Till then we will humbly respect your Contempt for the Probably True,
And climb to the heights of Conjecture,
Great Germans, with you!

CANTICUM BRUMALE.

OLIM patriarcha Noe
 questus est diluvio e pleno, 'iam est satis, ohe!'

cum cedente bruma veri
 campi fiunt lacus meri, nobis quoque licet queri.

ambulare super prata liquescenti nive strata res est plane condemnata.

huc et illuc lapso, nuto,
 nunquam gressu vado tuto,
 nunc in nive, nunc in luto.

remex crudo pastus bove
 sedet segnis, invitove frustra temptat flumen Iove :

namque rivum videt qualem nautae dicunt esse salem
 juxta polum Borealem.

sponte quaerit vir Tutores :
 legit—contra suetos mores—
 Literas Humaniores,— namque quando cui nos demus verum opus non habemus, iure nugas exercemus!

DISENCHANTED.

THEY told me of the August calm
 Of Oxford in the Long Vacation,
 How rarely plies th' infrequent tram
 'Twixt Cowley and the Railway Station;
 How Undergraduates are gone
 Or peaks to climb or moors to shoot on
 And none remains but here a Don
 And there a speculative Teuton:
 How in the Parks you seldom see
 The terminal perambulator;
 How tradesmen close at half-past three,
 And silence broods o'er Alma Mater.
 Ah me! 'twas all a baseless dream;
 One thing they quite forgot to mention—
 The recently developed scheme
 Of University Extension.

They told me Oxford in the Long
 A place of solitude and peace is:
 They told me so—they told me wrong;
 For every train imports a throng
 Of sisters, cousins, aunts, and nieces,
 Who crowd the streets, who storm the Schools,
 With love of Lectures still unsated;
 They're subject to no kind of rules,
 And can't be proctorised or gated.

'Neath auspices majestic,
 Their guide some Principal or Warden,
 From morn to eve they throng the Hall,
 And all day long they "do" the Garden.
 Upon one's own peculiar haunts
 They rudely pry—O times, O manners!
 They strum the Pirates of Penzance
 On Undergraduates' pianners.

The Bursar entertains about
 A score of feminine relations,
 Whilst I invoke my absent scout,
 And hope in vain my humble rations.
 If this be Oxford in the Vac.,
 When all her sons afar are scattered,
 If this be peace,—then give me back
 The Torpid wine, the tea-tray battered!

SPRING.

Now the feathery tribes
 Sing their annual lay,
 (As the poet describes)
 On the usual "spray,"
 And the easterly zephyrs we're used to proclaim the dominion of May.

All the music of spring—
 It is with us anew!
 The thrushes that sing
 And the ring-doves that coo—
 And the boys who endeavour to sell us the Star and the Oxford Review.

Now the meadows among,
 Whither golfers resort,—
 Where the grass is as long
 As their tempers are short,—
 The language they use to their caddies is such as I cannot report.

Now the man on the bank
 With assurance dilates
 On the style that is "rank"
 And the varying weights
 Of the persons condemned by misfortune to row in their several Eights.

And Lectures we vote
To be hollow and vain,
And the Don has a note
From the Man to explain
That the whole of his female relations come up by the twelve o'clock train :

But the coming of Greats
Casts a sensible chill
On the wretch who collates
His "Republic" and "Mill";
And he dreams of the τὸ τί ἦν εἶναι, and wakes to discourse of the Will.

P. VERGILI MARONIS FRAGMENTUM NUPER REPERTUM.

VENIT hiems; multosque etiam venientia testes
 Dant Parvisa sui. Qui vix semel hebdomadali
 Tempore Tutoris quaerebat limina, nunc it
 Terque quaterque die, poscitque et ab hoste doceri,
 Mendosas prosas ululatorumque feraces
 Ille quidem referens. Adeo nova vertitur illi
 Pagina; non repetit curandis (scilicet) urbem
 Dentibus infelix; Nonas celebrare Novembres
 Jam timet et miseris supponere civibus ignem.
 Invigilat noctu libris; tum rite togatus
 Templum mane petit (faciem stupet inscius ante Janitor); ut, durum quamvis patiatur aratrum,
 Termine, te saltem servet, placeatque Decano.
 Mox hunc scribentem Schola Magna Australis habebit,
 Adjectiva, nefas! (res est nec digna magistros Fallere nec facilis) latebris suffixa galeri
 Cum substantivis—lateant si forte—legentem.
 (Incassum—namque omnibus est academica vestis—
 Procurator complerier agmine denso
 Strata videt; maestusque Via palatur in Alta,
 Multa gemens, cistamque nequit ditare sequendo).
 Accipe nunc artes. Memini, qui saepe negatum
 Saepe tamen rursus petiit Testamur; at illum
 Ad fluvium comites percussaque robore tergi

Torpidi ad alterius cogebat transtra iuventus ;
 Sed puer Eucliden nec non Pronomina Graeca
 Adfixit lintri, medioque legebat in amne,
 Oppositum observans humerum librumque vicissim.
 Sic multas hiemes et sic vicesima vidit
 Parvisa, Edmundi vivens contentus in Aula.
 Sunt qui praetereant ; est, qui patietur aratrum.
 Sed vos, O juvenes, quos praeteriisse vetabit
 Ferreus et viva damnârit voce magister—
 Hospitium si dura negant Collegia, si vos
 Excipit e Christi depulsos Corpore Turrell—
 Ne tamen in medio mergat furor aegra fluento
 Corpora, neu famulis sectas obtendite fauces ;
 Spes maneat ! veniet lustris labentibus annus,
 Cum vos Graecorum per mille pericla chororum
 Perque mathematicos ducet Fortuna papyros ;
 Tunc aliquis comitum, longis venerabilis annis,
 Ibit, et aequaevi referet Testamur amici.

LINES SUGGESTED BY A STONE-SAW.

"THE silent groves of Academe"—

In ages which our fathers knew,
 When trams were yet an airy dream,
 Perhaps the epithet was true:
 Ere members of St. John's and New
 Had heard the peacock's doleful scream,
 The phrase was applicable to
 The ancient groves of Academe.

Now, when Salvation's rank and file
 Emerge from out their native slum,
 Their retrogressive chief the while Performing on his sacred drum,—
 When men who've passed their latest school,
 Or traction engines worked by steam,
 Disturb the rest that still should rule
 The silent groves of Academe,—

When little boys who sell the "Star,"
 And saws that split the strident stone,
 Combine his spirit's peace to mar
 Who cons his unattractive Bohn,—
 The student in his cloistered shade
 Pursues in vain some lofty theme,
 When sights and sounds like these invade
 The silent groves of Academe.

Still must I hear, at half-past five,
 The hooter's hoot that greets the morn;
 Still, as the shades of night arrive,
 The Torpid-man's exultant horn:
 For every various form of din
 From Carfax Church to Cherwell's stream
 Is heard continually in
 The silent groves of Academe.

LINES ON A MYSTERIOUS OCCURRENCE.

I WISH I knew geography—for that would tell me why
'Twixt New South Wales and Paddington you needs must pass the High!

Of course I know the fact is so: 'tis singular, but then
Veracity is still the mark of literary men.

All in the High a Yankee man I happened for to find:
He'd come from the Antipodes, and left his purse behind:
And here by his embarrassments compelled he was to stay ('Twixt New South Wales and London town 'tis all upon the way.)

His simple tale affected me: 'twas more than I could bear:

I brought him to my humble cot and entertained him
there.

And "Books!" he cried, while gazing on my well-assorted shelf,

"I've written some immortal works—anonymous—myself!

"Full well I know the authors of those venerable tomes—
Yes, there's Nathaniel Hawthorne, and there is Wendell Holmes!

My literary relatives I number by the score:

Mark Twain's my cousin twice removed, by far Missouri's shore."

He spoke of many famous men, and all by Christian names—

Yes, Howells he called William D., and Russell Lowell, James :

His kinsmen and acquaintances were all in Culture's van;
I do not think I ever met a more related man.

"But what's the use of all that crowd," the Transatlantic said,

"When I am bound to catch the cars, and ain't got nary red?

Stranger, I guess with Caius C. Maecenas you'll be known
If you will just oblige me with a temporary loan."

I can't resist celebrity—I lent him shillings ten,

That impecunious relative of literary men :

And when he comes to pay it back, no doubt he'll tell me why

From New South Wales to Paddington the shortest way's
the High.

A SONG OF THE SCHOOLS.

WHENE'ER I see those sculptured Three, above the New Schools' gate,
 Whose stony forms a heart of stone too aptly indicate,
 It minds me, as I gaze upon those cold, unfeeling men,
 How often I've been ploughed before, and oft shall be again ;
 And O ! that Undergraduate, receiving his degree—
 They give that Undergraduate what ne'er they'll give to me !

Before my locks were streaked with gray, and seamed
 with care my brow,
 I got through Mods. in seven tries—I often wonder how—
 But Greats, alas ! I cannot pass ; for were my mind a sieve, I
 Could just about as well retain the narrative of Livy.
 They tell me where Saguntum was ; I hear, but I forget—
 I can't distinguish Hamilcar from Hasdrubal as yet !
 They say my Aristotle's "weak," and always mark
 "N.S." on
 My papers when I try to prove that virtue is a μέσον :
 And when I bring the Clerk a bob, he simply says in answer,
 "What ! give you a testamur, Sir ! I much regret I can't, Sir."

Full proudly struts the Honourman, with look serene and high;

Yet O! although his task is hard, he's better off than I!
He's specialised on all that's known, and also much that's not:

He knows far more than Liddell, and quite as much as Scott:

He uses philosophic terms so long 'tis hard to spell 'em,
Has all M-c-n's most recent tips, and theories from P-lh-m;

But can the boastful Honourman—can P-lh-m or M-c-n know

The various individuals who bore the name of Hanno?
No—much more difficult his task, superior far his art,
Who buys a crib at second-hand, and learns that crib
by heart!

Still, ere I quite give up the game, and migrate hence to Durham

(For if examiners have hearts, some pity sure must stir 'em)

I'll try another 'bout with Fate—one last and desperate venture—

This time, perhaps, will victory crown my limp dejected
trencher:

Then, proud as any ancient Greek who won the Isthmian
parsley,

I'll sign myself

EXPLICIT DIALOGVS.

DOCTRINAE SEDES.

WHEN Pleasure rules in Learning's realm
 With Heads of Houses to escort her,
 And Youth directs an errant helm

In "Shorts" that every year grow shorter :
 When Scholars "have their People up,"

(A plea that everything excuses)

And quaff the gay convivial cup

Where once they wooed the classic Muses :

When men who used to come at nine
 Are "indisposed" (a known condition),

And Brown has several aunts to dine,

And cannot do his composition :

When Tomkins—once a studious lad—

"Desires most humbly to express a

Sincere regret he has not had

Time to complete his weekly essay";

When Lecturers have lost their use,

Because the youth they idly prate to

Has other things whereon to muse

Than mere Thucydides or Plato—

(You think, perhaps, he's taking notes?

Mistaken dream! too well I know he

Is speculating on the boats,

Or thinking of a rhyme to Chloe):—

Then seek with me some calmer scene,
Where wines are hushed, where banjoes mute are;
There—careless though they burn the Dean,
And immolate the Senior Tutor—
We'll muse in solitude, until
June and the Long once more disbands 'em;
Then, William, pay my washing bill,
And call at once my usual hansom.

FOOTBALL AND ROWING—AN ECLOGUE.

MELIBŒUS. CORYDON.

Mel.—Nay, tempt me not, my Corydon; I tell you once again

That football is a game beneath the dignity of men.
Time was, I chased the bounding ball athwart the meadows green—

Before I read what critics said, within the Magazine.
Degrading sport! at which, indeed, I used to shine
at school;

Alas! I knew no better then, and was, in fact, a fool;
Of all the spectacles on earth, I know no sight that's sadder

Than thirty men pursuing of a mere inflated bladder.
Were I to play at games like this, when nearly in my twenties,

'Twould argue me behind my age, and parum compos mentis.

'Tis "semi-gladiatorial" too—a thing which I abhor—
At least that's what the papers say, and likewise Dr.
Warre—

And so I've donned my boating-coat, and down to row
I'm going,

For oarsmen swear (they often do) there's no such sport as rowing.

Coryd.—Ah, hapless youth! Why, don't you know what countless ills await

The man who strives to figure in a Torpid or an Eight?

Learn, then, that such (you'll find it all in last week's Magazine)

Of individuality have less than a machine;

"Two" looks at stroke, and bow at "Three," and imitates him stiffly,

And once embarked, you can't get out between the Barge and Iffley.

The chops and steaks on which you dine are (like your person) raw;

You can't devote your mind to Greats, or History, or Law—

For when they're rowing in an Eight, I'm told that gentlemen

Are comatose at half-past eight, and sent to bed at ten!

Mel.—Alas! 'Tis clear, such sports as these can ne'er have been designed

To satisfy a person of a cultivated mind.

Since both alike a mark present for journalistic sneers,
Rowing and football I'll forswear, and join the Volunteers!

WHEN copies of the Magazine,
 In Bodley's dark recesses,
 Provide the future Stubbs or Green
 With themes for learned guesses:
 When scholars, airing sapient doubts,
 And antiquarians zealous
 Write monographs to prove that Scouts
 Were not the same as Fellows,—

Posterity the day may see
 (Though daring the conjecture)
 When Readers read to more than three
 And e'en Professors lecture:
 When Youth to town no longer goes
 To cure its suffering molars,
 And does, unasked, its Latin Prose,
 And "keeps" spontaneous "Rollers"!

Then woman, long oppressed in vain,
 Will claim her proper station,
 And take degrees within the Ancient House of Congregation:
 And making free with rights which we—
 Not unreluctant—give her,
 St. Hugh's will rule the History School,
 And Somerville the river.

And that (an M.A. said) is why

I recognize my mission

To realize that πάντα ῥεῖ

And all is mere Transition:

And why, when Council plans reforms,

The cause on which they base it

I do not ask, nor wish to know,

But take my cap and gown and go

And vote a cordial Placet.

LOVE AND GOLF.

HEAR me swearing, fairest Phyllis !
 —Golfers all know how to swear—
 Though, of course, your presence still is Most attractive everywhere,
 Links were ne'er designed for lovers :
 Do not, Phyllis, deem me rude,
 When I hint that man discovers
 Charms at times in solitude.

Lips like yours should never utter Ugly words that golfers speak—
 "Dormy," "stimy," "mashy," "putter,"
 "Driver," "brassy," "bunker," "cleek" !
 Sooner read—though Cultured Woman
 Is a thing I hate and shun—
 Horace, that distinguished Roman,
 Than Horatius Hutchinson.

Though, in hours of deep dejection,
 When the disappointing ball
 Takes, if hit, the wrong direction,
 Sometimes can't be hit at all,—
 Though whate'er the golfer says is Justified by reason due,
 Still I hold his Saxon phrases
 Most unsuitable for you.

Tennis be your sole endeavour
If you must aspire to fame!
But at golf—believe me, never
Can you hope to play the game.
There, your “swing” but courts the scoffer,
Boors and clowns your “driving” mock;
Fate, who made the clown a golfer,
Meant you, Phyllis! for a “crock.”

Meet me then by lawn or river,
Meet me then at routs or rinks,
Meet me where the moonbeams quiver,
Anywhere—but on the links!
Thus of you I’ll fondly ponder
O’er the green where’er I roam,
(Absence makes the heart grow fonder),
Only, Phyllis, stay at home!

PROCTORS IN PROCESSION. (1891.)

QUI contemptu pressus est, ecce fit sublimis, quique summus fuerat, mixtus est cum imis:
 anne vos iniurias perferetis tales,
 Guardiani, Praesides, atque Principales?

olim in Ecclesiam Universitatis praecedebant maximae viri dignitatis:
 ibant cum Doctoribus Capita Domorum
 in Doctorum cathedras, sicut est decorum:

primus venit omnium Bromi de sacello
 Vice Cancellarius, ductus a bedello:
 Procurator pone tum, Praeses ibat ante (tintinnabulario rite tintinnante).

ordo nunc euntium notus exolescit,
 deprimuntur Capita, Procurator crescit,
 nunc (velut petorritis si trahantur equi)
 idem hic praegreditur qui solebat sequi!

Caput Domus quodlibet est permagnus homo,
 nihil potest propria exturbare domo:
 Procurator annua tantum habet iura,
 utque vere dixerim, servus est natura.

alter fiet—nihil est quare metuatis—
 unus e Collegio Universitatis:
 neu collega terreat: brevi fiet iste mera pars Collegii Divi Jo. Baptistae.

vivunt illi regulas persequendo stultas,
propter parva crimina imponendo multas :
sunt interdum utiles, sed plerumque pestis :
vos cum illis nulla re comparandi estis.

Sive vos in praelio trucidabit Freeman,
—sanguis certe Praesidum bonae legis semen,— morte contumelias peius ferre tales,
Guardiani, Praesides, atque Principales !

ODE TO THE TEMPORARY BRIDGE AT OSNEY.

Proud monument of British enterprise!

Stately highway of Commerce! thou art old:
Since with enraptured gaze we saw thee rise

Three winters o'er thy perilous planks have rolled,
Each with its load of carriages and carts:
Freshmen, who saw thy birth, are Bachelors of Arts.

Majestic arch, that spans the Isis' flow,

Fraught with the memory of our lives imperilled,
We could not hope to keep thee—thou must go.

Yet shall no bard in Chronicle or Herald,
No civic Muse, deplore thee? none of all
Who paid augmented rates to rear thee, mourn thy fall?

Thou art of schemes municipal the symbol,

As crazy, and as tortuous. Fare thee well!
Not long o'er thee shall Undergraduates nimble

Evade the Proctor and his bulldogs fell:
Business and Pleasure to their old forgotten
Path will return again, and leave thy timbers rotten.

Perchance some Alderman, or Member of

The Local Board,—his shallop softly mooring,—
Beside thy site contemplative will rove

And weep awhile thy glories unenduring:
And unimpeded by thy barring wood
Dead cats and dogs shall float adown the central flood.

CAVENDISH: AN ODE.

I.

AND can it be? is Cambridge too
 To Ignorance a slave?
 Can dark Reaction's tide imbrue
 The Cam's progressive wave?
 I used to think that every fad,
 That every scheme and purpose mad
 In Education's sphere,
 A Kindergarten system, or
 A theory of Mr. St—rr,
 Could find expansion here!

II.

As golfers, doomed by fortune harsh
 To seek the flats of Cowley Marsh,
 Still turn a wistful eye upon
 The verdant slopes of Headington,
 So Cavendish—a pigmy race—
 Laments th' obnoxious rule
 Which closes that peculiar place,
 The Cambridge Infant School.

How oft—when privileged to view
Amid some rural scene
Her freshmen, walking two and two,
Escorted by the Dean—
How oft her halls I seemed to see,
Where, dandled on the Master's knee,
They learn their ó, h, ró,
And little Pollmen lisp with glee
About their Little-go!
Not there (I thought) the studious boy
Is taught to fill, with lawless joy,
The gay nocturnal cup:
At half-past eight—or so 'tis said—
The Tutor sends his men to bed,
And comes to tuck them up!
No "gates" or fines pollute the air:
No scholarships or prizes there
Reward successful cram;
But Vice is spanked (though not too hard),
And Virtue finds its due reward
In extra helps of jam.

III.

Such was the scene: but human bliss
Is bound, alas! to pass away:
And Cavendish no longer is,
Because she did not pay.

An exiled crew, her students wend—
Their corals lost, their rattles broke—
For Cavendish has found an end
 (As usual) in smoke:
And once again on history's page
 Is chronicled the truth—
Youth cannot live with crabbed Age,
 Nor crabbed Age with Youth.

A MEDITATION ON METRE.

O is 't not hard that every bard
 Who seeks to shine in letters,
 Must still be bound by rules of sound,
 And simply dance in fetters?
 Would we had lived in ancient times,
 When genius found expansion,
 When no one had to hunt for rhymes
 Nor mind the laws of scansion!

They did not go to public schools
 To learn to make a poem,
 Nor knew their Quantitative Rules
 As we've been taught to know 'em:
 Because—despite what scholars write
 And pedantry rehearses—
 Reflection shows that Pindar's prose,
 And only looks like verses.

Yet still from slips in ancient song
 We frame consistent uses,
 And when they make their lines too long
 We call it Anacrusis:
 When Sappho strays from Reason's ways,
 With reverence still we treat her,
 Although she pens what is not sense,
 And really can't be metre.

Whene'er some celebrated man
The critic's ear perplexes
By writing lines that will not scan,
'Tis Hypercatalexis,—
Should you or I this method try
To mould our scansion after,
'Twould move, one fears, our friends to tears,
And stir our foes to laughter!

And so, when Afric's darkest States
Attain their culture's crowning,
And dusky students read for Greats
Their Tennyson and Browning,— Whene'er the critic finds a flaw
Which now our work disfigures,
He'll make that flaw a general law
For young poetic niggers!

A REJECTED NEWDIGATE.

O SICILY! upon whose torrid shores
 Here Scylla lurks and there Charybdis roars:
 Where great Empedocles, that ardent soul,
 Leapt into Etna and was roasted whole:
 O smiling vales! and O tremendous heights!
 Tróð by the heroes of a hundred fights,
 Now British tars, and then Athenian seamen,
 Here Archimedes, there Professor Freeman!

'Twas evening: when in Enna's flowery vale
 Persephone was plucking galingale,
 And various other flowers less known to us
 Than to translators of Theocritus.

Dis marked the damsel from the shades below
 (Dis was the cause of all dis tale of woe):
 And as with energy that naught appals
 The Eight of Jesus chases Teddy Hall's,
 As the grim bandit on the Thracian crag
 Collars the lonely tourist's Gladstone bag,—
 Dis seized the maid and bore her off dismayed
 To share his kingdom in th' infernal shade.

Was it the hooting of the skyey owl?
 Or rose from earth that melancholy howl?
 Demeter marked the absence of her daughter,
 And on the mountains and the plains she sought her:
 All day she cried (in accents fit to deafen ye)
 Persephone! Persephone!! PERSEPHONE!!!”

O who can paint a mother's speechless woe?
Not I, for one: mere narrative's de trop.
Though the detectives both of Rome and Sparta
Were furnished with descriptions of her daughter,
Though she repaired to various distant climes,
And put advertisements within the Times,
In vain she questioned persons far and near:
She Asked a P'liceman—nothing could she hear:
And when she asked the men of Syracuse
"Where is she? where?" 'twas not the smallest use:
For though they speak Italian, you're aware,
None made response, nor "Ecco" answered "Where?"
Meanwhile Persephone, as schoolboys know,
Was ruling sadly in the shades below,
Where Acheron and Phlegethon and Styx
Their floods tremendous with Cocytus mix,
Where—but the details, and they're far from scanty,
You'll find described in Lemprière, or in Dante.
Some like the place: Persephone did not:
'Twas badly lighted, and 'twas rather hot:
Amusements slow—she really could not feel
A spark of interest in Ixion's wheel:
Though Pluto did his best to cheer his wife,
What she complained of was the want of life.
"Bear me," she cried, "O bear me back again
To Enna (loveliest village of the plain),
Where I was wont in girlhood's happy hours (Myself a fairer flower) to gather flowers!"

Jove heard her prayer : and 'twas arranged that she Should make an annual trip to Sicily.
So Britain's invalids (by doctors' stern behests)
Perplexed by maladies of throats or chests,
Fly from the hurricanes of winter hoar
To Cannes' retreat or Nice's genial shore :
Yet, when the spring asserts her genial reign,
So Britain's invalids come home again.
Thus Undergraduates, a studious race
(Their country's pride, and Oxford's chiefest grace),
Wearied with Plato and with Latin Prose,
Enjoy through half the year a well-deserved repose.

* * * * *

This of thy tale, Persephone ! the abstract is and pith :
Some say it's allegorical, and some a Solar Myth.
I dote on hoar Antiquity, and love its legends old,—
But yet I can't believe much more than half of what I'm told.

THE NEW DOCTORS.

B.D. Venerabilis. (Epitaph.)

Mutato nomine D.D. (HORACE.)

THE Scholar's ploughed for his degree if wanting in Latinity,

The Science man is forced to pass a terminal Prelim.:
 But he who'd be a Bachelor or Doctor of Divinity
 Will find that such impediments were never meant for him.

The Man's supposed to know about th' Athenian Hegemony,

The Law of Real Property, the Structure of the Flea:
 The Don's excused from everything (contradicente ne-mine)—

Except, of course, the payment of the statutable fee.

Should I to Convocation go and there those ancient nob's tackle,

And point out all the pitfalls which they set about my way,

And ask to be delivered from a single little obstacle

Of all that now prevent me from attaining a B.A.,— Whate'er the tale of hindrances my progress that en-cumber is,

The Registrar would simply laugh—the Senior Proctor frown—

They'd quote to me Stat. ix. Tit. Cap.—I don't know what the number is—

They'd say 'twas quite impossible: perhaps they'd send me down.

And yet 'tis hard that hapless men should have to read
Thucydides,

And have their life a burden made by all the things
they're taught,

When Convocation's managers associate to rid D.D.'s
Of reading disputations as the Statutes say they ought.

When Undergrads admitted are to share the jus suffragii
(A thing Commissions contemplate, as shortly will be shown),

We'll stop these vile malpractices which¹ now with grief
and rage I eye,

We'll make them read their thesises, and see that they're their own!

Till then, O Dons, who doubt about your Greek and your Latinity,

Yet want to wear a Doctor's gown as men of mark
should do,

You need but ask—they'll let you off your thesis on Divinity:

The Statutes are for common men, but are not meant for you.

ΟΙΗ ΠΕΡ ΦΥΛΛΩΝ.

OCTOBER's leaves are sere and wan ;
 And Freshmen each succeeding year
 Are, like the leaves, less verdant than They were.

Time was, they paced the Broad or High
 In cap and gown, with sober mien,
 Their only wish to gratify
 The Dean :

But now they seek the social glass,
 The bonfire and the midnight feast :
 And e'en describe their Tutor as A Beast.

Once, when that Tutor strove to show
 How (though it's sometimes hard to see)
 There is a difference 'twixt οὐ
 And μή,

They gazed with simple wonder at
 The treasures of his hoarded lore,
 Nor hinted that they'd "heard all that Before."

They wore a cap hind part before,
 A gown of quaint domestic cut :
 They served the general public for
 A butt.

On them the casual jester tried
 (Nor failed) his old ancestral jokes :
They nightly placed their boots outside
 Their oaks.

No youths but recently from school
 Could hope to ape the senior man :
But now—I state a general rule—
 They can :

And it's comparatively rare
 For Fourth-year men, though old and gray,
To have as much of savoir faire
 As they.

For still among the myriad throng
 Who yearly tread Oxonia's stones,
Monotony extends her sway,
And Smith grows liker every day
 To Jones.
